TRIAL OF J. LAMARTINE HUDSPETH WILL BEGIN TO-DAY.

IT WILL BE A LIVELY ONE

MANY EXCITING ENCOUNTERS BE-TWEEN OPPOSING COUNSEL.

Budspeth Is Defended by William H. Wallace, Major Blake L. Woodson and Colonel John N. Southern-Will Plead Self-Defense.

The second trial of J. Lamartine Hudspeth for the killing of Josiah W. Kessner was gotten fairly under way in the criminal court yesterday afternoon.

As far as may be judged from the open-ing scenes the trial promises to develop into an exceptionally heated contest be-tween the opposing attorneys, into which a large amount of personal feeling enters. With half an hour of the opening the leading lawyers on each side had participated in half a dozen wordy "spats," had exchanged more or less broad reflections on the ability and sincerity of purpose of each other, and had been threatened with fines by Special Judge Samuel Davis.

It was 4 o'clock when the court convened and the following jury was announced as the selection to try the case:

The plaintiffs claim that the ordinance is class legislation and that it would be as just to discriminate against a printer's religion. Evidence was offered to prove that the ordinance in question would operate to the exclusion of nine-tenths of the printing houses in the city and that among those so excluded were the best equipped establishments in the business.

Three Divorce Petitions.

Remarkably short and bitter was the connubial blies of Charles E. Warrens, if the allegations con-tained in his suit for divorce from Mary Ray War-rens, filed in the circuit court yesterday, are true. In his petition he states that they were married July 5 last, and that almost immediately after the cer-mony the defendant commenced drinking, writing en-dactions letters, to they may and otherwise wisconmony the defendant commenced drinking, writing endearing letters to other men and otherwise misconducting herself. One specific charge of infidelity is alleged. The couple separated August 1—just twenty-six days after they had been made man and wife. Desertion, preceded by drunkenness, cruelty and abuse, are the grounds given by Martha V. Wood as the reason why she should be granted a disorce from Richard B. Wood. They were married at Pleasant Hill, Cass county, August 30, 1837, and she alleges he left her in October, 1838. She asks the retoration of her maiden name of Hall.

Daniel McNamara, nephew of "Bishop" McNamara, who achieved considerable notoriety in Kanass City several years ago, is named as defendant in a suit for divorce filed by Lena McNamara. The plainiff charges desertion.

CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR.

Considerable Gossip, but the Voters Are Attending to Their Business Instend of Politics.

There is some gossip about who will receive the Republican nomination for mayor. B. L. Woodson ad John N. Southern, It is generally conceded that the Republican candidate will be elected and hence the importance of the matter is apparent. The most interest naturally is felt among those who hope to hold jobs under the next city administration. As a general rule those in office never want to get out, but it is always true that more want to hold jobs than are in jobs. In this way those who depend on office for a living and those who hope to make a living by breaking into office form an active aggregation which is at present trying to pick the winning side.

The average voter has not taken up the subject. He is etgaged in business and not worried over statemaking with all salary in sight from some successful candidate. those who hope to hold jobs under the OLDEST MASON IN THE COUNTY CAN-NOT RECOVER.

Is 83 Years Old, and Has Been a Manufacturer for Sixty-five Years in Independence-He Recently Retired.

Robert Weston, one of the ploneer man ufacturers of Jackson county, is critically ill at his home on West Maple avenue, Independence, and hope of his recovery has been abandoned. He bears the distinction of being the oldest Mason in Jackson county, having attended lodge in Jackson county when the lights of Masonry burned dimly in a log cabin surrounded by a dense forest. He is now 82 years of age and has been engaged in manufacturing for about sixty-five years.

Only a year ago he ceased active business Attorney Reed gave the jury a bald statement of the leading incidents of the killing illustrating his remarks by the aid of a large penel sketch of the scene of the shooting. His contention was that the killing was wholly unprovoked and uncalled for. He was not interrupted until almost at the close, when he venured a surmes as to what the defense would be.

Attorney Wallace prefaced his remarks with the statement that the defense would be justification—self-defense pure and simple. He would show, he said, that the prisoner was puryleisally a weak man, that he winders on the winder of the word of the content of the word of the surface of the surface of the surface of the word of the word of the word of the prisoner was puryleisally a weak man, that he winders of the word of the content of the word of the content of the word of the surface of the word of the content of the word of the surface of the word of the content of the word of the word of the word of the content of the word of the w life on account of old age and rapidly fail-

The old members of the Masonic lodge consider that Mr. Weston is probably the oldest member of the order in the county and up to a time when feeble limbs refused to climb the steps to the lodge rooms he was a regular attendant. Several times he has served his lodge as worshipful master, and his great delight was in meeting and greeting old Masons.

Out of this sprang three great cycles of

Mr. Henry Latchford, who led the dis-cussion said that the essential element of romanticism was that it touched the hearts romanticism was that it touched the hearts of the people. "Romanticism had not reached England in Shakespeare's time," said Mr. Latchford. "The poet had no idea of the nobility of the common man for whenever he takes his characters from the common walks of life and brings them upon the stage he always makes them buffoons. This respect for the average man comes with the spirit of romanticism."

"I had the pleasure of meeting Dewey on several occasions before he became famous," said Lieutenant Byroade to a reporter for The Journal yesterday, "and I learned to regard him with the greatest admiration and esteem. When I first knew him I found him to be a man more than him I found him to be a man more than ordinarily conscientious and above board, outspoken and frank in every particular. He has not changed a particle. I do not believe that glory and honor have turned his head. The criticism heaped upon him is uncalled for and unjust to a degree. His motives in all dealings with his fellow men have always been pure. He is a gentleman not from education and training alone, but from nature and I do not hold that he has violated any rule, law or custom. He does not deserve the censure which has been heaped upon him from certain quarters."

Lieutenant Byroade is accompanied by his wife. They are on their way to Hot Springs, Ark., near which place the lieutenant's company is now stationed. Lieutenant's company is now stationed.

Judge John W. Wofford—I never heard of Dewey in my life.

Judge J. L. Smith—The American people are something like soda water—they effervence and then settle down. I think that the recent criticisms on Dewey have been most unjust but I am confident that the matter will settle down and right itself. It was an unfortunate incident and reflects no credit on those who have jumped at an opportunity to harshly criticise what I consider as a purely domestic affair of the admiral's and have so soon forgotten the gallant services he has rendered this country.

GREAT INTEREST AROUSED. Proposed Cold Storage Plant Topic of Much Discussion Among Produce Men.

Great interest in the proposed uptown cold storage plant was aroused among produce commission men and merchants yes-terday by the publication of the plans in The Journal. It was almost the sole topic of discussion at the Produce exchange and of discussion at the Produce exchange and about the city market all day.

The committee will proceed as rapidly as possible and in a few days will go before the Manufacturers' Association with its scheme. It is thought that the block at Third and Grand avenue is perhaps the most suitable and available for the purpose. The produce men express their willingness to take stock to the amount of $25,000 or $50,000 to show the capitalists who go into the enterprise their good faith and interest. nterest.
"It is a thing that every commission man "It is a thing that every commission man would join in bringing about," said Barnett Pruzan. "The produce men would put $25,000 or more into it with the promoters. They would do more if they could, but They would do more if they could, but They would the produce men have made good livelihoods in Kansas City of late years, they have not done much more than that, and few have surplus capital beyond that employed in their business."

Mr. Pruzan said that although Bradstreet's and other agencies showed several millionaire or haif-millionaire produce merchants in other cities of the United States, there was none in Kansas City. He attributed it to the fact that Kansas City was in a producing region and the other cities in a consuming district. Farmers and gardeners, who come to the market in Kansas City by the thousands, detract much from the profits of the commission men.

Jimmie Riley's Forehead Hit.

Jimmie Riley's Forehead Hit.

James Riley was before Police Judge Burnham yesterday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. The evidence showed that he followed up Police Officer Kenney in a dark street, thinking he had a good thing. He did have it, or rather he got it, for when his pursuit became too annoying to the officer, who was in citizen's clothee, the latter asked him a few questions and then placed him under arrest. Officer Kenney had procedeed only a short distance when he thought that Riley had designs on him, for he apparently reached for a gun or a knife. Kenney pulled his gun, which was of huge proportions, and struck his prisoner over the forehead with it. Riley became very doctle and was afterwards a willing prisoner. Judge Burnham fined him 15.

He learned, however, that he would have to wait ten hours once more, either here or in Springfield, so he decided to wait here. "The smallpox is prevalent in Springfield." he said last sight, in telling his troubles, "and I would tracountedly catch it if I stayed in that town any engities of time. I did not start on Friday, nor on the 12th, but the next time I go on a journey I shall try to do that, just to change my luck."
